 FOR my first New York Fashion Week, Mummy chooses a dress from her own collection (€1,995) and Cutler & Gross sunglasses (€295). I've gone for Bonpoint socks (€239) and a Makie two-piece in black and white gingham (€95). Mummy and Daddy chose this pattern — apparently, they love big fat cheques.

 A GIRL can't start shopping soon enough, so Mummy and I hit the stores in New York. She goes for another of her own designs (€725) and I've picked a Bonpoint dress (€195). But who's stuck this silly pink Bonpoint hairslide on my head (€22)? As soon as I've got this whole hand/eye co-ordination thing cracked, it's going.

 MUMMY and I spend a tiring afternoon trawling the pick of New York's designers. Mummy opts for yet another dress from her collection (€1,500) while I'm in a Marie Chantal dress (€115) and cardie (€82). After all that shopping, I need a nap. Sing me a lullaby, Mummy. On second thoughts ...

A VERY POSH BABY!

She's only 4 months old but Little Miss Beckham's already got a wardrobe to rival her mother's

 LOOK at Mummy and me in matching pink. There's a lot of travelling to do as a Beckham baby, so here we are at Los Angeles airport. Mummy is wearing an Azzedine Alaia skirt (€1,150) and cardigan (€745) and Cutler & Gross sunglasses (€325). I've let her style me in a Makie blouse (€62), matching bloomers (€38) and Bonpoint hairband (€48).

 WHEN I go to see Daddy playing football for LA Galaxy, I don't bother with a boring supporter's scarf. No, it's designer wear all the way for me! Today, I'm wearing a navy Bonpoint dress (€175), teamed with a pale pink cardigan (€125). Just try to beat that, Suri Cruise.

 HEY, I'm four months old, so I'm not as camera shy any more. In fact, bring it on! Mummy has chosen a teal dress from her collection (€1,950), while I'm wearing a Bonpoint checked dress (€125), chocolate brown ribbed tights (€38) and a bargain Marie Chantal hairclip (€8).

 ANOTHER day, another shopping excursion. Mummy wears a dress from her collection (€1,795) while I choose a Bonpoint Jameli dress (€115), matching hairband (€42) and Chloe ribbed tights (€45). OK, enough with the headbands! They look better on Daddy anyway.

 OOOH, it's getting a bit nippy in New York, so Mummy and I make sure we wrap up as we catch a flight at JFK airport. Mummy looks snuggly in her fake fur jacket, and I've gone for a Terre de Sienna babygro (€122) and a Bonpoint alice band (€48). Baby, when it's cold outside, you've still got to trend it like Beckham.
